

Centreville Learning Center and Concord
Behavioral Health Present
"Anxiety: Why Worry?"
with Harris Finkelstein, Ph.D.

Join us for an evening lecture with Dr. Harris Finkelstein: "Anxiety: Why Worry?"

Tuesday, January 24, 2012

6:00- 7:30pm

Centreville School

Harvey Gymnasium

6201 Kennett Pike

Centreville, Delaware 19807

www.centrevilleschool.org

Dr. Finkelstein will be addressing the topic of anxiety disorders in children and adolescents: the different types of anxiety related disorders, how they manifest themselves in children's behavior, and they impact and are impacted by family dynamics, and outside stressors. He will discuss how anxiety disorders affect the social, emotional, and educational development of children, and offer strategies for coping with these challenges, including how to create a positive home and school support team so that children can reach their full potential.

About Dr. Harris Finkelstein: Dr. Finkelstein is a licensed psychologist and the co-director of Concord Behavioral Health, a private practice in Wilmington, Delaware. For over 25 years he has worked with children and adolescents in various settings including schools. He is an adjunct faculty member at Widener University, a member of the American Psychological Association, the DE and PA Psychological Associations, the Society for Personality Assessment, and the International Dyslexia Association. We are fortunate to have him share his expertise in children and education with us.

This program is free of charge. To reserve your seat please e-mail Margaret Leardi, Director of Advancement at mleardi@centrevilleschool.org.

For more information on the Centreville Learning Center or Centreville School please visit our website or call the school: 302-571-0230.

“We measure our success by the success of our graduates.”